

Here is the considered opinion of a World Repute American Historian "Stanley Wolpert" in his book "JINNAH OF PAKISTAN" about the Quaid-i-Azam, Muhammad Ali Jinnah.

"Few individuals significantly alter the course of history. Fewer still modify the map of the world. Hardly anyone can be credited with creating a nation-state. Mohammad Ali Jinnah did all three. Hailed as "Great Leader" (Quaid-i-Azam) of Pakistan and its first governor-general, Jinnah virtually conjured that country into statehood by the force of his indomitable will. His place of primacy in Pakistan's history looms like a lofty minaret over the achievements of all his contemporaries in the Muslim league. Yet Jinnah began his political career as a leader of India's National Congress and until after World War I remained India's best "Ambassador of Hindu-Muslim Unity". As enigmatic a figure as Mahatma Gandhi, more powerful than Pandit Nehru, Quaid-i-Azam Jinnah was one of recent history's most charismatic leaders and least known personalities."

The above tribute to Mr. Jinnah is not by a Pakistani eulogizing the founder of his nation but by an impartial observer of South Asian History.
